VALLE SECRETO FIRST EDITION CARMENÈRE 2011

Cachapoal Valley, Chile

Gold Medal winner at the 2013 Concours Mondial de Bruxelles.

TASTING NOTE: Big, rich, smooth Carm that's overflowing with dark fruit and berry aromas. All that dark fruit echoes on the palate, which is superbly concentrated and balanced with a long, velvety finish. Very well done. Enjoy it tonight with herbed steaks or burgers. (VINTAGES panel, Sept. 2013)
